Dear Mr. Danenow,

~~My topic is about money for abandoned animals. I chose this topic because it's something I'm into about. I never thought about a topic before until we had to decide.~~

A problem that I had on my paper was finding websites about payments on health care/vaccines for animals.

My strengths on this paper is having a passion for animals & knowing so much about them already. The most surprising information I found out is that 14 population of animals are abandoned & don't have much of a life.

My weaknesses could be on my interview. I could have interviewed someone other than my mom, like someone that works at an animal shelter. ~~Other than that, I think I did a good full effect on my paper.~~

Sincerely,

~~Jessica Hobbs~~ Jessica Hobbs

Yes, I am still happy w/ the topic I chose. The researching that was done for my topic wasn't completely easy but it wasn't the hardest thing. Yes, I found enough research for my paper. I actually got too much so I didn't have to use it all. Organizing was probably the hardest thing to do bc there were so many notecards & they all pretty much clashed together.

The hardest thing about writing my paper was organizing my notecards. The easiest part about doing my paper was the topic, bc it was the 1st thing that popped in my head bc it's something I'm close to.
